BLACKNESS IN ETHIOPIA VS THE WEST

Rosa Kassa

I asked around campus and heard diverse views: hip-hop, beauty, and challenges in the West. Yet, blackness is an inherent part of identity, woven into daily life. In the West, it means unity, resilience, and cultural richness. In Ethiopia, it's a lived experience tied to ethnicity and community. Blackness is more than a movement; it's vibrant and ever-present.

An advertisement for the Black Campus News Room app. It features a tablet and two smartphones displaying the app's interface. The tablet shows a navigation menu with options like "Pool", "Resources", "University Chapters", "Fellowships", and "Projects". Below the menu, it says "PORTAL" and "African Collegiate News". One smartphone shows a "Enter the PORTAL" screen with a green globe icon and "Download on the App Store" button. The other smartphone shows a news article titled "My Blackness" with a photo of a group of people. The background is black with green decorative elements.
